WASHINGTON.

Large Amount of Counterfeit Seven-Thirties in Circulation.

Detailed Description of the Dangerous Counterfeit.

Statement that Grant will be Relieved During the Present Week.

The Proposed Serenade to the President Indefinitely Postponed.

Special Despatch to The Chicago Tribune.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.

COUNTERFEIT SEVEN-THIRTIES IN CIRCULATION.

There has been considerable excitement for two or three days in the Treasury Department, growing out of the fact that counterfeit or forged seven-thirty bonds were found to be in circulation. The first discovery was that thousand dollar notes of 1864, 1865, were being duplicated by some one in the department, and sent out into business circles. It was noticed that of certain classes of bonds issued since, were fraudulently received from the sub-treasury or banks for exchange for redemption or conversion. They were so much alike that, though carefully examined by the detectives, it was impossible to pronounce any of them counterfeit, and a most searching investigation was made to ascertain by whom the duplicates were manufactured. The best experts and detectives at the command of the department took hold, and this morning reported to the Secretary that there were no duplicates, but that considerable were out, and that no suspicion attaches in any way connected with the department. . . . counterfeits are of fair likeness, and over sixty thousand of them have been sent here by New York banks for redemption. Government bears nothing on them, of course. How many have been put in circulation there is no means of knowing, but the department is informed that they are scattered quite generally among the banking houses in New York and Philadelphia. Department detectives are working up the case, and hope to get hold of the counterfeiters. A description of the spurious bonds is furnished, which is as follows: First, the paper is slightly tinged in the engraving; the red ink with which it is stamp is a shade lighter, and the points projecting from the end are blunted and a little larger than the genuine. Second. The imprint at the bottom of the face of the bond differs in margin, there being more space given to than in the genuine. Third. The borders of the counterfeit are thicker, and . . . differently executed. Fifth. The figures denoting the bond are slightly uneven, while the blank ink with which the number is filled and blurred and lacks the metallic, glossy appearance of the genuine. Sixth. There is, to my notice, a difference in the . . . of the bond and the face of the bond. The lines are not so well shaded, nor is the blank ink so well distributed.

GENERAL SHERMAN.

The General of the Army arrived in this city yesterday morning, and a reception of capital citizens, and the Corporation of the city, the Union League, and the Republican Club, waited upon him and an announcement to that effect was made to the administration. . . . General Sherman, however, declined to be official, however, to let the President above named in a speech, and excused managers from the Senate and Representatives from attending, postponing . . . reception here this evening. Notwithstanding . . . there was some excitement among the friends of . . . about noon, but the final conclusion was reached that the President would not be disturbed in the quietude of his private life, and the committee . . . Conservatives, with that delicate regard for the feelings of . . . their political opponents which has characterized their action in all matters . . . have concluded to defer . . . action in connection with the serenade to the President . . . to any public demonstrations of joy over their great popular triumph. The proposed ovation will be postponed indefinitely, and the Republican committee will be quietly placed upon the Congressional list. The intimacy . . . between the General and the President . . . will be cemented . . . by the former's presence at the White House nightly in the evening, just . . . the three months in the summer, when the President would be at Long Branch, and . . . would be at Newport, they spend . . . at the White House. . . . The Star evening says there seems to be a disposition on the part of the Democratic leaders to . . . the President from . . . the Republican party. . . . AURORA TURNER HALL.

Laying the Corner-Stone of the New Edifice.

Address by E. James, Esq., and General Davis.

Yesterday morning, the corner-stone of the building to be erected at the corner of Milwaukee avenue and Second street, for the "Aurora Turner-Verein" (Aurora Gymnastic Association), was laid with imposing ceremonies. These commenced with a procession, consisting of large delegations from all the Turner societies in the city, a large delegation from the Schaumburg-Lippe Shooting Association, a full band of music, and a large number of citizens. The line of march was through several of the principal streets, the procession finally halting at the corner of Milwaukee avenue and Second street, where the ceremonies were performed. The Turner societies participating were plainly dressed in their gymnastic costumes, and presented a handsome appearance in the West, and, it is safe to predict, will not a little contribute to the healthy growth of this beautiful city, as it undoubtedly will to the physical development of the rising generation, which, with appropriate music, followed by an address in the German language by Mr. E. James, Esq., of the Chicago Turner Society, on behalf of the Turner societies participating. This was followed by an address in English by General Charles Davis, Esq., in the name of the Aurora Turner-Verein, in which he referred to the history of the Turner societies in Germany, by the patriots and thinkers of her Universities, and

GYMNASTIC ASSOCIATIONS,

The organization of which, in Germany, by Edward Turner, Esq., undoubtedly had much influence in securing the liberty and progress of the German people, as a whole, against narrow-minded, selfish, and tyrannical governments. He regretted that the Turner societies of Germany had not been able to secure the liberty and progress of the United States, and commended their heroic struggles for liberty, which Europe had witnessed, and which, in the service of the Republic, from the City of Mexico to the Rio Grande, from the City of Washington to the Mississippi, had proved the value of their principles on that battle-field, where the fate of the Republic was decided, and which, as most reliable and most true worthy men, stood by the flag.

The speaker was convinced, they were all eager to defend it was like holding a sacred trust. Factions and narrow-minded prejudices had been buried on the battle-fields of the Republic, and the graves of the brave men who had fallen on the fields of Gettysburg, Vicksburg, Chattanooga, and Atlanta, showed with unmistakable clearness that the Turners had been true to the principles of liberty, and that now as then they were ready to defend the Republic with their lives, if necessary. The speaker was convinced, that the Turner societies would always prove faithful to the principles of liberty, and hoped the prosperity of the Aurora Turner-Verein would be reflected from its former friends—the true party of liberty and progress.

With reference to the temperance question he would remark, that the Turner societies were not opposed to temperance societies, as a matter of itself, but the practical application of the principles of temperance societies, as established by the party associated with it had always subjected the Turner societies to ridicule, and had driven Turner in force of progressive ideas. At the very time when the Turner societies were the most flourishing, the temperance societies had already collapsed. The Turner societies were opposed to the temperance societies, because they were opposed to the principles of liberty, and they will bravely, and without compromising themselves, continue to carry the light of liberal views and a rational

PHYSICAL AND MORAL EDUCATION

Of the people, as far as in their power, to the very end of their existence. It appears that the regular Turner societies of Chicago, which, by the way, have chosen from their midst, and his choice was approved by the Executive Committee of the Republican Party, Mr. Fred. Hoffman, as their candidate for Coroner, and who, by the way, is a practical physician, and a thorough German gentleman, by education, which will be a guarantee that he will faithfully discharge the duties of the office, if elected, will soon have their own place to meet in. Mr. Hoffman is the owner of the lot on the corner of which the Aurora Turner-Verein will erect its building, and has generously donated it to the Society. The building will be 50 feet front and 100 feet deep, and will cost, when completed, about $25,000. The Society has already a membership of 200, which will undoubtedly be increased to 300 within a few years.

THE MANUFACTURE OF LEATHER.

The Coming Revolution in the Tanning Interest.

An Important Discovery.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 4.

To the Editor of The Chicago Tribune:

While in New York last week, I met in company with two of the most extensive leather manufacturers in the United States, who were over from a year through the Western States.

While in conversation with them, I learned that they had been over the route, for the purpose of ascertaining the best location for the erection of tanneries, to be built East to be manufactured leather, and returned to your people made up into boots and shoes.

This leads, I suppose, to allusion to Revolutionary fact of the necessity of tanning material, with which to make leather. Where hides, I would ask, are principally obtained, for manufacturing purposes? Is it not from the cattle collected in the Western States and Territories? Is it not a fact that the bulk of the hides of Eastern cattle, but that were of Eastern raised cattle, but that were of Western States, to be sent East to be manufactured leather, and returned to your people made up into boots and shoes.

The Western States have long been, and the Territories of Colorado, Nevada, Utah, and the Pacific States will become largely interested in the manufacturing of hides, which they produce, and which will increase the wealth of the United States, and become largely interested in the manufacturing of leather,
